PANDEMONIUM IN SHANGHAI CABARET

Dance Hostess Hit By Visitor

BOTTLES, GLASSES HURLED ABOUT

Shanghai, Jan. 20. Another incident involving Japanese or Koreans in a local cabaret occurred yesterday when four Japanese or Koreans created a disturbance in the Great Eastern Ballroom, Wing On Building.

Four visitors broke chairs, a table, beer bottles and glasses after a dance hostess had remonstrated with one of them for their alleged unbecoming manner and acting.

Pandemonium reigned in the ballroom in the course of which patrons and dance hostesses fled while the orchestra played gamely on as if nothing had happened.

The incident occurred about 7.10 p.m. when four men entered the ballroom, sat down at a table and ordered two bottles of beer, and a pack of playing cards. Two of them got up to dance. In the middle of the dance floor one of them was alleged either to have slipped on the floor or just lay down full length under the alleged influence of drink. The hostess with whom he was dancing remonstrated with him whereupon he jumped up and hit her. At this stage a foreigner rebuked him and a fight between them ensued which the manager tried to break up.

While this was going on the three others wrecked a table and chairs and threw bottles and glasses about. After the damage was done the party of four departed.—Reuter.

ALLEGATION DENIED

Italy And Payments For Russian Goods

Rome, Jan. 20. The Italian Government has denied the allegation made by the Soviet that Italian firms and Government withheld payments for Russian goods. On the contrary it is stated that Russia did not carry out her obligations regarding the sale of oil and oil products to Italy. It is added that there is no justification in the Soviet Government's order that payments to Italian firms and enterprises be made through the State Bank.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

CALDECOTT'S FIRST TUSSLE IN CEYLON

HEATED DEBATE IN LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

Colombo, January 20. There was a heated debate at the Legislative Council meeting to-day with regard to the order-in-Council in which the Governor of Ceylon (Sir Andrew Caldecott) has been given powers to enact measures which he shall deem necessary for peace and order.

Although the Secretary of State for the Colonies (Mr. W. Ormsby-Gore) emphasised in his despatch that the order-in-Council had been made as a safeguard against encroachment of the Governor's powers by the Legislative Council, members of the Council passed a motion that the King be petitioned to repeal the order which they regard as a curtailment of the privileges of the Legislative Council.

The Council tabled a resolution not to transact any business until the order is revoked.

Later the resolution was postponed at the request of Ministers who asked to be given time to negotiate with the Government.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

(Sir Andrew Caldecott was formerly Governor of Hong Kong. He was appointed Governor of Ceylon in January, 1936).

"STAR" FERRY FINAL DIVIDEND

Profitable Year

A final dividend of $3.75 per share, involving an amount of $300,000.00, will be recommended by the directors of the "Star" Ferry Company, Limited, it was announced yesterday. This makes a total dividend of $5.75 for the year.

Subject to audit, the amount at credit of the profit and loss account for the year ended December 31, 1937, is $457,024.78. Less $180,000.00, the amount of interim dividend paid at $2.00 per share, the figure stands at $277,024.78.

The amount brought forward from 1936 being $18,828.00, the total now available for distribution is $313,852.78.

The Company has benefited from the abnormal conditions which existed in the later part of last year and, at the forthcoming yearly meeting of shareholders, the directors will recommend, in addition to the $3.75 dividend, that $13,852.78 be carried forward. (See Also Page 8)

British Regiment Would Have Been Annihilated

TIENTSIN INCIDENT TENSION EASED

Shanghai, Jan. 20. The acute Anglo-Japanese situation in Tientsin arising from a virtual ultimatum from the Japanese military authorities threatening to forcibly remove from the British Concession a Chinese alleged to be engaged in anti-Japanese activities unless he was handed over has eased with the Japanese dropping the issue.

British troops, consisting of the 1st Battalion Lancashire Fusiliers numbering about 850 men, had definite orders to resist by force any Japanese attempt to enter the British Concession. A clash would inevitably have entailed their annihilation owing to the overwhelming numerical superiority of the Japanese. The grave consequences of such a development are easily imaginable but it is felt in British circles that the issue demanded a firm stand.

The Japanese military authorities gave the British until 3 p.m. yesterday to deliver the alleged agitator but the British refused.

The atmosphere was very tense as 3 p.m. approached. Zero hour came and went. Nothing happened and the situation remained, however, very tense until it became known that the Japanese had dropped the whole issue on the ground that it arose out of a "misunderstanding."—Reuter.

THICK FOG IN HARBOUR

Serious Inconvenience To Shipping

Hong Kong was enveloped last night in an unusually thick fog, which caused great inconvenience to shipping in the harbour for more than four hours.

The dense and humid weather of the day presaged a misty night. About 10 p.m., however, it was sufficiently evident that there would be a repetition of last year's occurrence, when a grey blanket descended from the Peak and with surprising rapidity spread to every part of the harbour, obliterating all familiar objects from view.

Moving vessels were seriously handicapped, and progress was attended by great difficulty. The continued blare of ships' sirens testified to the conditions obtaining.

Ferry services, nevertheless, carried on as usual, although the trans-harbour journey was most difficult to negotiate about midnight, when the fog was thickest. One or two ferries went off their course, but fortunately without mishap. They were eventually guided to their destinations after some delay by the clanging of gongs.

The city was also a blurred vista, street lamps and other electric signs appearing in the gloom like fantastic pools. Vehicular traffic, however, ran to schedule.

YOUTH'S FATAL LEAP FROM VERANDAH

A Chinese youth named Wong Kit jumped from the third floor verandah of No. 148 Wanchai Road about 10 p.m. last night, sustaining serious injuries from which he died an hour or so after admission to hospital.

Passers-by were startled by a loud thud on the pavement. They were shocked when it was discovered on closer inspection that what had fallen with such force was the body of a man.

An ambulance was immediately summoned, and when it arrived Wong was found to be in a very precarious condition. He was transported to the Queen Mary Hospital, where he died at 12.15 this morning.

Police, who are making investigations, are satisfied that it was not an accident. No further details are at present available.

ADMIRAL NODA ON NEW RACE IN ARMAMENTS

Not Informed Of Japan's Naval Construction Plans

Tokyo, Jan. 20. Admiral Noda, Chief of the Naval Information Department, addressing foreign correspondents to-day declared that the Japanese view of the execution of naval construction plans announced by Great Britain and America as well as of naval armament plans of Soviet Russia was that these decisive abandonment of naval strengths hitherto fixed by Treaty were accordingly equivalent to the beginning of a new naval armaments race.

Admiral Noda declared that to make the present Sino-Japanese conflict as a pretext on the part of various Powers for strengthening their fleets was completely to misunderstand the inner reasons for the conflict itself.

Regarding rumours of Japan's alleged plan to build 46,000-ton battleships, Admiral Noda said that he was not informed of the Japanese naval construction plans hence he could not take responsibility for an official denial. But there were so many rumours now in circulation about Japan's intentions to build monster battleships that denials were superfluous.

Admiral Noda, in conclusion, emphasised that Japan now as heretofore was ready to take part in a new Naval Conference provided the well-known Japanese demands for quantitative disarmament of a common maximum limit in naval strengths would be made the subject of negotiations.—Transocean News Service

HOW LAW GOVERNS ONE'S DAILY LIFE

Chief Justice's Lecture At Y.M.C.A.

"Freedom is a noble thing, but freedom untrammelled may degenerate into licence, and so the legal brake is necessary in the interests of the community as a whole, but English law does not further interfere with freedom than is absolutely necessary," remarked His Honour the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, when he gave a lecture on "Law And The Ordinary Citizen" to a large and interested audience at the European Y.M.C.A. last night.

The lecturer said: "Man is a gregarious animal. In that curt phrase there lies a profound truth. The moment that you predicate as an essential of human existence the friendly association of man with man, you get society: from society there springs naturally the modern concept of citizenship, with all the rights and duties which it necessarily connotes, and unless within the association or group, whether it be Empire, nation, city, village or family, there is to be chaos and anarchy, the rule of might rather than of right, there must be a code of rules of behaviour, and it is that code of rules that we call law."

DUTIES OF INDIVIDUAL

We hear a great deal about the duties of Government, statesmen, and politicians and still more of their lamentable shortcomings, but we are apt to forget the equally important duties of the individual citizen and to gloss over his shortcomings. Although every one of us is a human unit with his own separate tastes, peculiarities, outlook and character, we cannot live our lives independently without the goodwill and co-operation of others.

To extract the full benefit of what the world has to offer we are obliged to sacrifice some of our individuality, surrender some of our freedom, and act together. That is why there has to be a central organisation or Government to co-ordinate effort and supervise the activities of the community.

THE HERD INSTINCT

Without some such unifying process it would be impossible for the several human units to reap full advantage from the fruits of the earth or to make full use of the wonderful inventions of man. The strong silent man of fiction and the pictures is not a pleasant character in real life, and when he carries his strength and his silence to extremes he is a menace to society.

Even in the animal kingdom the herd instinct is strong, and the beast that leaves the herd, that forgoes or flaunts the pack law, is the rogue, the outlaw, the bad citizen.

Let me now say a word or two about law. It is one of the most significant features of English law as, to every lover of true democracy, it is one of the most inspiring and heartening features, that it has a sense for practical issues.

THE LEGAL BRAKE

Freedom is a noble thing, but freedom untrammelled may degenerate into licence, and so the legal brake is necessary in the interests of the community as a whole, but English law does not further interfere with freedom than is absolutely necessary.

You may say that is nothing but sheer compromise. It may be so, but I am proud of it. Nowhere throughout the body of English law will you find that striving to achieve scientific definition, that urge to lay down a form of such idyllic perfection that the effort to attain it means the distortion of one's way of thought, the dislocation of one's ordinary course of living, and the ultimate subordination of the citizen to the law.

"A CRUEL SPORT"

Professor C. K. Allen writing of the practical impossibility of supplying exhaustive definitions of English legal conceptions says "It is a cruel sport, and one to which lawyers are somewhat prone, to try to make the 'supple' body of the law lie easy on the Procrustean bed of definition."

The very flexibility of English law ensures that it marches onwards hand in hand with the trend of modern social development, and that it is the strongest and most unobtrusive ally of the good citizen.

As Professor Holland puts it, "Laws are the very bulwarks of liberty. They define every man's rights and stand between and defend the individual liberties of all."

AN APT QUOTATION

The quotation which I always think, most aptly puts law in its proper perspective in relation to citizenship is Carlyle's "Laws are not our life, only the house where-in our life is led; nay, they are but the bare walls of the house, all whose essential furniture, the inventions and traditions and daily habits that regulate and support our existence are the work not of Draco and Hampden but of Phoenician mariners, of Italian masons and Saxon metallurgists, of philosophers, alchemists, prophets and the long-forgotten train of artists and artisans, who from the first have been jointly teaching us how to think and how to act, how to rule over spiritual and physical nature."

JOHN AND MARY

With that brief introduction I want you to follow the adventures of John and his wife Mary, good citizens of Hong Kong through an ordinary average day. Picture to yourselves a wet dull Monday morning in February in Kowloon, one of those mornings that Cole-ridge with such apt alliteration described as "a long lagging muzzly morning."

When John gets up it is still pretty dark, he has got that Monday morning feeling and nothing is further from his thoughts than that his every action is governed by law. He walks into the bathroom, turns on the bath, and while the water is running in starts shaving, for which purpose he has to switch on the electric light.

For the hundredth time he remembers that the bathroom light is in the worst possible place in relation to his shaving mirror, and reflects ruefully that he will probably cut himself. He makes up his mind to ask the Company to put in another light for him.

"PUT PEN IN INSIDE POCKET"

Magistrate's Advice To Public

The larceny of a fountain pen from the person of Mr. Shou J. Chen, Manager of the Bank of China, in Ice House Street on Wednesday, had a sequel in the Central Magistracy yesterday when Li Tim, 25, salesman, was charged before Mr. R. Edwards with the theft.

The man was convicted and in passing sentence the magistrate expressed his surprise at the insistence of people in clipping their pens to their outside jacket pockets despite the frequency of such larcenies.

Mr. Shou J. Chen said he was walking in Ice House Street, on his way from his office to the Bank of China, on Wednesday afternoon. Half-way down the street defendant came from his left side and bumped into him. He heard the click of his pen and knew something had happened. He immediately seized hold of defendant but the pen was not on him. At the same time he saw another man walking away very quickly.

ARRESTED MAN

Witness looked round for a policeman but saw none and proceeded to take defendant to the Bank of China. On the way the man tried to escape but a member of witness' staff happened to be passing by and together they secured him and took him to the Bank. There the police were telephoned for.

Li Tim denied the charge. "In view of the frequencies with which fountain pens are picked from jacket pockets, particularly of European clothes, I am quite at a loss to understand why people don't put them inside," said the magistrate in imposing sentence of two months' hard labour.

CHOPPER ATTACK ON FOREST GUARD

For the unlawful possession of 56 cuttings of pine tree wood and assault on a forest guard, Chan Sam-kui, 38, unemployed, was fined $250 or three months' hard labour, and sentenced, additionally to, three months' by Mr. H. R. Butters at the Kowloon Police Court yesterday. It was stated that when the forest guard, arrested defendant, he attempted to escape by attacking the forest guard with a chopper.

ANOTHER CASE

Sentence of three months' imprisonment with the option of a fine of $250, was imposed on each of the two unemployed men, Lai Shing and Li Chi, when they pleaded guilty to the charge of possession of 85 and 26 cuttings of pine tree wood, respectively at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday.

GAOL AND CANING

Brought on remand before Mr. R. Edwards at the Central Magistracy yesterday, Chan Kwai, who was convicted on Wednesday of having snatched a bag from a lady in Des Voeux Road, was sentenced to three months' hard labour and 10 strokes of the cane.

FORGED BANK NOTES CHARGE

Li Wai-leung, 29, unemployed, was brought before Mr. R. Edwards at the Central Magistracy yesterday, charged with possession of 150 forged bank notes purporting to be 5-Yuan notes on the Bank of China. Defendant was arrested on the Tung On Wharf, Connaught Road Central on January 18. Detective-Sergeant Soutar asked for 24 hours' remand, remarking that the case might be for committal.

FORGED BANK NOTES

Ho Yuen-pui, alias Li Kwong, 24, unemployed, appeared before Mr. H. R. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday on three charges of possession of a forged $50 Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank note, a $10 note of the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China, a $5 note of the Bank of China and a $10 and $1 note of the Canton Municipal Bank. The case was remanded for 48 hours on the application of the prosecuting officer.

BIT WATCHMAN'S FINGER

Seen by a district watchman early on the morning of January 18, acting suspiciously, Tam Yat, 28, unemployed, was stopped. When taken into custody he resisted arrest by biting the watchman's finger.

Later enquiries were made and he was brought before Mr. R. A. D. Forrest at the Central Magistracy charged with (a) housebreaking at Jaffe Road, and theft of two leather suitcases, one gold ring set with diamonds, one jade brooch, a pair of earrings and a few fur coats on January 17, with another not in custody; (b) receiving the above; (c) assaulting district watchman Li Kwai at Queen's Road Central on January 18.

Defendant pleaded guilty to the first charge and the second was withdrawn. Sentence of three months' hard labour to be served consecutively was passed on charges (a) and (c). Detective-Sergeant J. Bentley prosecuted.

ASSAULTED POLICE

Li Shiu-sek and Shek Yuk-ling, described as clerks, appeared before Mr. R. Edwards at the Central Magistracy yesterday, charged with assaulting two Indian police reservists. Shek was additionally charged with being drunk and incapable.

Inspector J. Fender said about 1.30 a.m., Police Reservist Abdullah Shak was in Wellington Street and saw the two defendants fighting. He and a companion tried to separate them but were struck.

First defendant pleaded he had merely tried to help the other man and His Worship gave him the benefit of the doubt. Second defendant was fined a total of $15 and bound over in $25 to be of good behaviour for six months.

GAMBLERS ABSENT

Not one of 20 Chinese arrested in a gambling raid at Spring Garden Lane appeared when their names were called before Mr. R. A. D. Forrest at the Central Magistracy yesterday, and all had their balls extracted.

Two of them, Chan Man, 38, unemployed, and Fun Kam, 40, unemployed, charged with keeping the premises as a gaming house, were on bail of $50 each, and the others on $3 each.

LOCAL ESTATE

Wong Pak Ming, late of No. 109, Hak Po Street, ground floor, who died intestate on December 6, 1937, left local estate to the value of $2,200. Letters of administration to the estate of the deceased, have been granted to Wong Ching Shi, widow, of the same address.

COMMITTAL CASE

Committal proceedings were commenced yesterday before Mr. K. M. A. Barnett, at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday against Chung Cheung, 28, when he appeared on three charges of house breaking and larceny of clothing from a dwelling.

Inspector W. Russell applied for permission to withdraw a count in which defendant was charged with the theft of eight pieces of clothing from No. 35, Reclamation Street, as the police had no evidence to offer against defendant.

His Worship replied that he would hear the case summarily and would withdraw the charge if defendant pleaded not guilty or sentence him if he pleaded otherwise.

Chung Cheung pleaded guilty to the charge and before the adjournment of the committal proceedings, was sentenced to four months' imprisonment.

In connection with the two charges for committal, defendant was remanded for seven days.

ILLICIT STILL

Fines totalling $500 or, in default, six months' imprisonment were imposed on Chan Hing, 42, unemployed, by Mr. H. R. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday, when he pleaded guilty to a charge of possession of a still, fermenting materials, and distilling, at No. 166, Lai Chi Kok Road.

POLICE SEAMEN CHARGED

Two, seamen of the Water Police, Leung Ngau, 24, and Li Kau, aged 25, were brought before Mr. K. M. A. Barnett at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday on four charges of misconduct. They were alleged to have received and solicited gratuity from four sampan folk on Tuesday. The accused were remanded to Jan. 28.

REVOLVER IN GIRDLE

Sentence of a year's imprisonment was imposed on Chan Sai when he pleaded guilty to the unlawful possession of a revolver and two rounds of ammunition, before Mr. H. R. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday.

Det-Sergt. F. Nolan stated that defendant was arrested by Sergt. Grigg who was on picket duty. Defendant was searched outside No. 212, Lai Chi Kok Road and the revolver fell from his girdle.

STARTLING COLOUR CONTRASTS

IS THE WORD
for this season's

Colour has never been more important than this season! The new colour schemes are so startling and so well-defined that by adding the right colour note to any last year's outfit you can bring it completely up to date. Here is a bird's eye view of the new season's colour combinations.

- | | |
|---------------------------|--|
| BRIGHT GREEN is worn with | Rust, DARK CYCLAMEN, dark brown, purple. |
| DARK GREEN is worn with | Light Cyclamen, BRIGHT BLUE, orange, carrot red. |
| BEIGE is worn with | BRIGHT PURPLE, bright red, orange. |
| BLACK is worn | Alone. Or with bon-bon pink, cyclamen, acid-drop green, carrot red. Or with very new two-colour mixtures, rose and cyclamen, cyclamen and green, GREEN and BLUE. |
| NAVY is worn with | TWO shades of cyclamen, TWO shades of rose or of bright green. |

CYCLAMEN, as you see, is still the season's colour. But don't wear it with blue any more—that dates it. Far newer is cyclamen and green or cyclamen and rose. Be careful mixing the tints. When you have light cyclamen you have dark green and so on.

With a dark brown suit, wear a blouse and gloves of cyclamen or acid-drop green or bright blue. Beige is ONLY smart in the form of accessories. Beige gloves and a beige fox with a purple or a wine-red suit are extremely smart.

Grey, which is the most completely "out" of all colours, can yet be saved from dowdiness if only you'll be bold enough. Under a grey suit why not wear a blouse in broad stripes of red and yellow? (This red and yellow mixture is very smart.) And with a grey coat you could wear a frock in two bright shades of cyclamen.

If you LIKE all-black without a single colour note, it's terribly smart, of course. But a good many of us like a hint of colour—in which case go carefully. A BON-BON PINK or ACID-DROP GREEN blouse with a black suit is good.

Remember that the way in which you mix your colours is absolutely vital. Whatever happens don't be "bitty." Don't introduce your second colour note the one that's to be the making of your suit—more than TWICE. Never have gloves, blouse, buttons, button-hole, AND belt all in the contrasting colour—that would spoil the whole effect.

With a suit, matching blouse and gloves are no more fashionable. Let shoes and hat match the main colour note or melt into it. And with a coat, you can have dress and buttonhole in contrast, OR dress and hat.

FASHION NOTES

THE SCARF TURBANS

Travel easy headwear. Splash colour boldly on your white: take fine linen squares in colour matching your handkerchiefs. Use them like the jersey turbans which have had such a success, to twist into "parsee turbans" to wear on ship-board or on land, stabbed with jewelled pins. Persian silk scarves, too, roll into little open-top turbans. Take some of the hats which unbuckle to wash and iron, including the new bonnet shapes. Take the new pincushion beret with its buttoned down top, for here is something which cannot be crushed. And, as well, for the younger woman, there is the hooded bonnet for sports, evening and day alike, tying under the chin, cute as cute.

TRAVEL CONJURING TRICKS

Since on a cruise you cannot have unlimited packing space, the clever trick is to vary a dress in many ways so that all monotony leaves it. One way is the overdress seen at the right above; to a basic slip is added a variety of overdresses. There is the smoked chiffon to match the underdress as seen here, held to the waist by silver cords, which are repeated in a silver flower, just as the rose tone of the smoked portion of overdress matches the rose portion of the bodice.

When that overdress comes off, another is added in many coloured silk nets, striped downwards. Rose blends into a section of violet, violet into clover pink, pink into a lovely blue. This is the newer version of the degrade dress, which in former seasons has been shaded downwards instead of across. With these gay rainbow tones, goes a frilled net bouquet, flowerlike, to replace the roses, and that, too, is made of many colours.

Again, a long scarf, rose lined with purple chiffon will pass over the single shoulder straps, knot at the back, tells white she will carry a geranium red faille jacket with her, and put a vast bunch of velvet geraniums at her belt one day, wear a slick little lime-green bolero, and a puff of ostrich tips, lime, lemon, brown at her décolletage another.

SUNBURST JEWELLERY

Little ornaments are less interesting than important big ones this year. The jewelled bands made into clips are greatly admired; so are the faces with sunburst curls, in gold, to make brooches, clips, and belt buckles. They all add the little flip of interest to your clothes, which mark you out as a woman who understands the art of dressing.

But the clothes for sun and for lamplight are not the only clothes to be considered. You have to leave room for such varied wear as marabout bed-jackets and oldskin coats and sou'westers.

Fashion PRE-VIEW

Elegance In The Afternoons Round The Shops

Paris. No dress looks more easily smug than does the afternoon frock and no dress is more difficult to segregate between the town sports frock and that devoted to the cocktail movement. Afternoon dresses have to be simple, but they also have to be enriched. They may be made of anything—wool, silk, velvet—but they must all have the same look—a sort of discreet appearance, as though their wearer had just changed into them for the hour related to tea. Sometimes a plain dress can be lent an afternoon appearance by a change of hat, but on the whole it has to rest upon its own merits and indicate of its own power exactly what it is.

The Patou model could not be mistaken for anything but an afternoon dress, even if it were unaccompanied by its three-quarter-sleeved fur coat and its felt hat trimmed with satin grapes. Made of satin, it puts any suggestion of the sports frock out of court, and with the wrapping-around of bodice and skirt, the lines being held by pin-like buttons, it proclaims what it is, even to the exclusion of the cocktail frock, which would be less definite about the neck. This is in greenish grey, with hat to match, and it is that combination of a simple appearance with rather complicated structure which is so often the hall-mark of this sort of frock.

A Patou afternoon frock in green satin.

THE HIGH NECK

While the Patou model has the open neck, becoming to old and young alike, another type of afternoon frock has a neck made high in front by various ingenious devices and with a small open V at the back, made by pulling the material up under the chin and securing it with a down-ward pull from the back. The old cowl neck thrust high up under the chin gives something of the same effect. The high chin-piece works becomingly into fronts of afternoon dresses. Seams, tucks, gathers can be worn all down the front of an otherwise plain, coat-like dress and be simply a continuation of the under-chin movement. This is ample to produce the afternoon-dress effect, nor need any decoration be applied, though decoration continues to be an integral part of this kind of frock. The Main-bocher use of spangles is an instance of this, and "cathedral window" spangles, which emulate thirteenth-century glass, are used for a shirt-front of a black afternoon dress, let in folds and topped by a neat little neckband of the black material. Mainbocher is a little kinder to his clients than some of those who insist on defining severely, no matter what figure. He allows of easiness at the waist, fullness at the breast-line, in particular, skirts any tightness of which may be modified by the letting-in of close-gathering below the waist-line, but not extending to the sides of the hips.

The tendency to allow in afternoon frocks the becoming lines made by pleatings and gatherings is seen in some of the newer models which may influence the early spring fashions. All uses the stitched pleat freely and coats splay out at the back in a number of tailored pleats which are smart and easy at the same time. Fronts of coats and dresses retain the edge to edge character, but chiefly in order to have several edges which may be made by pleats. Where long coats are severe, the dress often has pleating down the whole length of the front, which shows through the coat openings. These whole-length pleats are held at the waist by means of elaborate and decorative belts. They are one of those simple and perennial devices which demand careful execution.

DISEASE

SPREAD BY AIRCRAFT

"Sanitary Aerodromes"

The text of draft regulations which it is proposed shall come into force on July 1, 1938, to combat the possibility of civil aircraft spreading disease was issued by the Minister of Health yesterday.

The regulations provide that certain aerodromes equipped with an organised medical service, with a medical officer, a place for medical inspection, a laboratory, and other medical features, and which will be protected as far as possible from rats, will be known as "sanitary aerodromes."

A plane arriving from a foreign place, together with the passengers and crew, shall be detained and the matter shall be reported to the medical officer.

If a death has occurred during the voyage other than as the result of an accident, or there is a suspected case of infectious disease.

If the aircraft has arrived from a locality believed to be infected with plague, cholera, or yellow fever, or in which typhus fever or small-pox is believed to be epidemic.

If during the voyage death not attributable to destructive measures has occurred among rats or mice on the aircraft.

Other regulations apply to cargo. The medical officer may also examine anyone intending to travel by air whom he suspects to be suffering from an epidemic

VICEROY LOVED BY INDIAN MASSES

Hyderabad, Jan. 20.

The Viceroy of India and Lady Linlithgow attended a State Banquet on their first official visit to Hyderabad.

The Nazim of Hyderabad, speaking at the banquet said that the Viceroy's infinite pain and genuine sympathy for the welfare of India endeared him to the Indian masses.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

disease, and if he concludes that the symptoms are present he may prohibit embarkation. He may also prohibit from travelling anyone who has been in close relation with anyone showing symptoms.

Undercutting That Has Led To Malayan Quota Bill

"British textile manufacturers are now being given a fair chance to win back trade lost to Japan," said a leading Singapore merchant giving his views on the Colonial Textile Quotas (Amendment) Bill. This Bill, which extends the quota scheme to made-up goods, was introduced into the Legislative Council of the Straits Settlements and passed into law.

How the Japanese manufacturer has been undercutting the market is shown by extracts from a price-list, among which are:—Children's dresses, 7d.; women's dresses, 9/6d.; cotton singlets, 2d.; socks, 2/6d.

cherry colour may be seen in these pretty little jackets, which hitherto have been reserved chiefly for evening purposes.

On the whole, the plain silhouette remains, with the skirt perhaps a shade longer. Decoration is inset, so that it forms part of the main stuff, and it may take the form of gold embroidery or of a contrasting colour let in curls or key pattern or scrolls equally.

TRUE CONFESSION

Comedy runs wild in Paramount's latest laugh-fest "True Confession," which, with Carole Lombard, Fred MacMurray and John Barrymore sharing co-starring honours is showing at the Queen's and Alhambra Theatres to-day.

"True Confession" is the hilarious tale of a girl who'd rather lie than eat and her straight-laced, truth-is-the-only-policy husband.

This unfortunate honesty of MacMurray, playing the young husband, is the cause of his extreme poverty, which Miss Lombard, his wife, tries to cure by getting a job. This, however, she has to do secretly, because MacMurray feels that it would hurt his prestige if his wife was known to be working.

The first day on the job, Miss Lombard walks out on her avaricious boss and almost immediately after she learns that he has been mysteriously murdered, and that she is under suspicion of having committed the murder.

MacMurray agrees to defend his wife, but only on condition that she tell him the truth. She tries to explain that she is innocent, but he doesn't believe this, and finally in desperation she "confesses" that she killed her boss in self-defence.

LOVE FROM A STRANGER

If it is thrills and excitement you are seeking then go along and see Ann Harding and Basil Rathbone in "Love From A Stranger," the most thrilling spine-chiller of the year, which is showing at the Majestic Theatre.

Make no mistake. This is not just a "horrible" film but an intensely interesting, brilliantly-acted study of the macabre. The film is a grim psycho-analytical drama of a murderer, and was adapted by Frances Marion, Hollywood's highest paid scenarist, from the successful play by Frank Vosper, which in turn, was based upon an Agatha Christie short story.

Much is expected of a brain-child of such distinguished parentage and "Love From A Stranger," superbly directed by Rowland V. Lee, also from Hollywood, fulfils every expectation. The film opens cautiously, but soon builds up to a tremendous almost nerve-wracking climax, in which Ann Harding and Basil Rathbone rise to magnificent heights of dramatic acting.

U.S. FLIGHT TO HAWAII

42 Planes For Islands By End Of Year

New York, Jan. 19.
Excellent progress is being made in the trans-Pacific flight by 18 United States Navy bombers, the advance guard of a large force of war planes to be stationed in Hawaii. Favoured by good weather they are due to reach Honolulu about 3 p.m. G.M.T. thus covering 2,570 miles from the Californian coast in between 18 and 19 hours of flight. Hitherto they have averaged 125 miles per hour. It is the greatest long distance flight by the Air Arm of the United States Navy. Each plane carries a crew of seven officers and men. The ultimate destination is Pearl Harbour.

The aircraft tender is equipped with searchlights and is stationed halfway as a beacon. By the end of the year 42 planes will be stationed in the Hawaiian Islands; twelve will fly there in the summer followed by twelve more in November.

BOMBERS ARRIVED
The Navy bomber have arrived at Pearl Harbour after 2 hours 22 minutes of flying.—

THE EAST INDIAN ARCHIPELAGO

Common Interests Of British And Dutch

London, Jan. 19.
"If rain penetrates our roof, yours would begin to leak too," declared Count Sturum, Netherlands Minister to London, addressing the Royal Empire Society last night alluding to common interests in the East Indian Archipelago. Count Sturum dwelt on the significance of communications between Singapore and Australia, and declared that centuries of cultural work lay behind both the British and Dutch and each will steadfastly play her part to prevent destruction of what had so laboriously and successfully been built up.

"It formerly we have been rivals it is evident the protection of our cultural achievements in those territories is a common problem, but we must not allow ourselves to be lulled by the confident expectation of a big brother's support. We are very much awake to the making of great sacrifices to guard our house," he said.—

WANTS BRITAIN'S FRIENDSHIP

London View Of Japan's Attitude

London, Jan. 19.
The reference made to Britain by Prince Konoye in his statement yesterday, is thought in London to be aimed at off-setting the challenging attitude adopted by Admiral Suetsugu, the Japanese Home Minister in his recent pronouncement.

It is believed in London that responsible circles in Japan do not wish to cause direct offence to Britain, or to allow Anglo-Japanese relations to deteriorate.

The Japanese policy towards the Peiping Government is understood to be in line with Japan's declared enmity of the Chiang Kai-shek regime, and it is considered obvious that the Peiping Government is completely under Japanese control, and does not necessarily represent Chinese opinion.

The statement by the Secretary to the Japanese Cabinet that the Japanese intention not to deal with the Chinese Government is a stronger step than the withdrawal of recognition of the Central Government or a declaration of war, is considered in London as mystifying. The withdrawal of diplomatic representatives already implies refusal to deal with China, but it is not considered in London as strong a measure as the declaration of war would be.—

HEAVY FIGHTING IN SPAIN

Saragossa, Jan. 19.
There was again heavy fighting on the Teruel front yesterday. The Nationalists scored some minor successes, but so far they have failed to decide the battle definitely in their favour. The initiative lies with the Nationalists, whose batteries and

The Anglo-Irish negotiations were concluded at four o'clock on Wednesday afternoon and the representatives of the government of Eire will return to Dublin on Thursday morning.

The official communique issued on Wednesday evening merely declares that discussion of various questions was continued and that, although agreement regarding certain questions had not yet been reached, the British as well as the Irish representatives came to the conclusion that the negotiations had sufficiently advanced to justify reference of the detailed examination of certain points to experts. Examination will be begun at once and consultations between members of the British and Irish

GERMANY AND THE FAR EAST

Publication of the official German communique regarding the German Government's endeavours to mediate in the Far Eastern conflict has made the international aspect of the conflict once more the subject of discussion in political quarters here. Quarters close to the French Foreign Office believe that Germany is trying to use her influence with Japan in order to induce that country to moderate her attitude.

According to Le Temps, political quarters in the Berlin do not believe that the Reich will recognise the provisional "puppet government" established by Japan in Peiping. The attitude of the German Press, the Temps declares, is that the latest developments in the Far East is not much to Berlin's liking.

"Berlin takes a rather pessimistic view of the situation which would result for Germany's trade from definite occupation of North China by Japan. The example of Manchukuo, where German trade is steadily declining, is hardly an encouraging advertisement," says Le Temps.

It is rather significant that Le Temps considers it fit to refer to rumours prevalent in British political quarters which assert that the Powers interested should resume their efforts to mediate in the Far Eastern conflict.

British political quarters believe, according to Le Temps, that Germany is endeavouring to induce Japan to moderate her policy. Le Temps expresses the opinion that Germany's attitude may prove a decisive factor in the further development of the crisis.

VIOLIN RECITAL

Hong Kong music lovers will have an opportunity of hearing Mr. Henry C. dos Remedios with Mrs. A. W. de Roza (Piano) at a Violin Recital which will be held at the Club de Recreio on Saturday, Jan. 22, at 9 p.m.

Mr. Remedios is one of Shanghai's most successful concert violinists. His radio and concert recitals both in North China and Japan have always been warmly commended by musical critics. He is a performer of skill, who plays with keen artistic feeling, whether his work be a simple lullaby or a Beethoven concerto.

By special request the following numbers will be presented:—Spring Sonata Op. 23, Allegro-Adagio Scherzo, Rondo, L. Beethoven; Humoreske, A. Dvorak; Souvenir, F. Drlia; La Folia "Variations", Corelli; Indian Love Call, R. Frital; Ave Maria, Schubert-Wilhelm; Liebestied, F. Kreisler; Liebestreud, F. Kreisler.

development of the crisis. The newspaper refers to rumours for a joint mediation step by Great Britain, France and Germany, pointing out that such a step would have a far greater chance of success in Tokyo than isolated action by a single power. Consultation between foreign Powers regarding such joint action, however, has not yet taken place, according to Le Temps.

It is certain, in any case, that Germany is anxious that Japanese military power, which safely offsets Soviet power in the Far East, should not be unduly exhausted by military operations in China whose end cannot be foreseen, add the paper.—

JAPANESE REPULSED ON HAINAN ISLAND

Alert Chinese Defenders

FOUR HOURS OF FIGHTING IN YULING HARBOUR

Holhow, Hainan Island, Jan. 20.

Under a heavy protective barrage from three Japanese warships and the escort of a number of Japanese airplanes, a Japanese landing party of about 200 strong made an attempt to land at Yuling Harbour, on the southern coast of Hainan Island, in a number of motor boats and sampans yesterday morning.

The alert Chinese forces defending the harbour opened a heavy fire on the invaders to prevent them from approaching the coast. After a four-hour engagement, the invaders were finally repulsed. No serious damage resulted from the Japanese naval and aerial bombardment.—Central News.

Tunchi, Chekiang, Jan. 20.

A heavy downpour during the last three days has much impeded the Chinese advance on Wuhu. The main body of the Chinese forces has now reached Wanchih, a town about 30 kilometres south-east of Wuhu, where street fighting is reported to be going on.—Central News.

30,000 JAPANESE SENT TO SOOCHOW

Tunchi, Chekiang, Jan. 20.

A steady stream of Japanese troops, numbering about 30,000 men, have arrived at Soochow, the Venice of China, from Nanking during the last week, according to a new arrival from that city.

All public buildings as well as temples, he said, have been turned into living quarters for these Japanese troops. Whether they will remain at Soochow or be sent anywhere has not yet been ascertained.—Central News.

CHEKIANG UNIVERSITY
DESTROYED

Nanchang, Jan. 20.

In addition to the Tze Kiang University (formerly the Hangchow Christian College) and the Hangchow Normal College, the National Chekiang University at Nanchang has also been destroyed by the Japanese, according to reliable information received here.

The University buildings are said to have been set on fire with petroleum on January 16 by about 50 Japanese soldiers while all books in the university library were taken away in several trucks.—Central News.

ORELSKY AT CHUNGKING

Chungking, Jan. 20.

M. Luganets Orelsky, new Soviet Ambassador to China, arrived here from Hankow by airplane at 5.10 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He was accompanied by M.G. Melamed and M.E. Ochanine, secretaries of the Soviet Embassy, Dr. T. T. Li and Dr. Tuan Mo-lan, director of the Publicity and Intelligence Department and secretary of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs respectively and others.

The Soviet Ambassador was greeted at the aerodrome by a group of about 100 Chinese officials, including representatives of the National Government, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Chungking Municipal Government, and the Generalissimo's Provisional Headquarters.

According to M. Ochanine, the Soviet Ambassador is a little indisposed and the date for his presentation of credentials to Mr. Lin Sen, Chairman of the National Government, has not yet been fixed.—Central News.

BOYCOTT IN SOUTHEAST

Hankow, Jan. 20.

A boycott movement against Japan is afoot in the Southeast, as a result of which shipping of Japanese piece goods to the islands has been suspended, a message received here states.—Central News.

RETIRED CHINESE OFFICIAL
BECOMES MONK

Tunchi, Chekiang, Jan. 20.

Previous reports that Mr. Chang I-lin, former Minister of Education of the defunct Peking Government, committed suicide by drowning himself in a well when he was pressed by the Japanese to head the "peace maintenance committee" at Soochow are denied by a new arrival from that city.

According to the new arrival, Mr. Chang fled to Tungting East Hill, on Taihu Lake, after the fall of Soochow city and became a monk. He is still alive.

Mr. Chang once suggested to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek for the organisation of an old men's army to assist in the fight against the Japanese after the outbreak of the Lukouchiao Incident. The suggestion was turned down by the Generalissimo.—Central News.

NORTH SHANSI CARNAGE

Linfen, Jan. 20.

Further atrocities by the Japanese troops in Shansi are reported in messages just received here which state that 700 villagers were slaughtered and about 1,300 houses were burnt down in villages lying between Kuohsien and Yuanping north of Taiyuan between January 9 and 14.—Central News.

1,400 JAPANESE CASUALTIES

Hsuehchow, Jan. 20.

The Japanese suffered about 1,400 casualties during their recent operations against the Chinese at Tsinin, important town on the left flank of the Tientsin-Pukow railway in Shantung, and at Chishui on the Chi River in the same province, according to an estimate.

The corpses of the fallen and most of the wounded officers and soldiers have been sent to Tientsin.—Central News.

JAPANESE TROOPS

REPORTEDLY RETIRING TO WUKANG

Kinhwa, Jan. 20.

Part of the Japanese troops in the Hangchow area are reported to be retiring to Wukang on the Soochow-Kashing railway, where a new defence line has been constructed by them.

In a heavy drizzle, the Chinese forces from Fuyang, southwest of Hangchow, pushed eastward to Szekuping and recaptured the place after routing the Japanese there yesterday. Considerable Japanese arms and ammunition were seized by the Chinese.—Central News.

JAPAN'S LUST FOR CONQUEST

Brings Anglo-Saxon Nations Together

Hankow, Jan. 20.

Commenting on the formal inauguration of the new British naval base in Singapore next month and the decision of the American fleet to join in the ceremony, the "Ta Kung Pao," leading Chinese daily here, says that the event indicates a further strengthening of the British forces in the Pacific on the one hand and a spirit of closer co-operation between the two great Anglo-Saxon nations on the other.

The reason for Great Britain to strengthen her forces in the Pacific, the journal explains, lies in the fact that she is resolved not to withdraw her interests from the Far East, while an Anglo-American co-operation in the Orient is caused by Japan's lust for conquest.

Recalling the Anglo-American co-operation in Far Eastern affairs in the past, the paper emphasises that they should not withdraw their interests from this part of the world now that Japan is bent on subjugating China.—Central News.

CHEFOO INCIDENT

Shanghai, Jan. 19.

Order is reported to have been restored in Chefoo, the North Shantung seaport where a mob got out of hand last week following withdrawal of Chinese troops on the British warship "Lowestoft", and the American cruiser "Marblehead" is still standing by for the purpose of protecting the lives and property of many British and American nationals who are remaining on in Chefoo.—Transocean News Service.

SINGAPORE GUARDS TRADE ROUTES

Air Forces To Be Still Further Strengthened

London, Jan. 19.

With reference to the report that the Singapore air base is to be substantially reinforced before the end of the year, it is learned in London that the present strength of the air units at Singapore amounts to four squadrons, two of which, totalling 12 machines each, are torpedo and bomber squadrons, and the other two, flying-boat squadrons of four machines each.

The total to which the Singapore air strength will eventually be increased is not known, but since the beginning of Britain's air expansion, the strengthening of the air forces at Singapore has been envisaged.

The Singapore flying-boats have a range of 12,000 miles without refuelling. In the event of an emergency, they could, by using existing facilities at Kuching and Kudat and elsewhere on the Borneo coast, throw a reconnaissance patrol practically across the South China sea, thus giving ample warning to any impending attack against Singapore by naval units, or by an attempt to land troops along the eastern coastline of the mainland.

Air reinforcements can speedily be sent to Singapore from India and Iraq.

COMBINED MANOEUVRES

London, Jan. 19.

As regards the forthcoming manoeuvres in Malaya from February 2 and February 5, the Admiralty, War Office, and Air Ministry have issued a statement that the exercises are to test the various aspects of the defences.

New batteries will obtain their first opportunity to engage targets in mimic warfare. Advantage is being taken of the presence of additional warships to open the new dock with an appropriate ceremony.

The dock was planned 17 years ago, and is not a threat to any Power, but a commonsense insurance of the British Empire to guard the trade routes.

DEFENSIVE MEASURES

Defensive measures against air attacks had been receiving much attention and the civil Government was co-operating with regard to practice "black-outs." It was not intended that the "black-out" should be applied to the whole of the island of Singapore, but tests will be confined to certain areas selected in order to limit to the minimum, inconvenience to the inhabitants.

Aircraft participating with the addition of squadrons from Iraq and India total considerably over 100, and will provide additional practice in rapid movement in air reinforcements from distant commands.

The defending force will be commanded by Major-General Dobbie and Air Vice-Marshal Tedder.—Reuter.

DE VALERA SEES DIFFICULTIES

Appeal For Irish Unity

London, Jan. 19.

At the close of the Anglo-Irish talks in London, Mr. Eamon De Valera, through "Reuter," sent the following message to the Irish people:

"I am hopeful that the present discussions will end in improving our relations with our neighbour. We have, throughout, emphasised that ending of the partition and the restoration of unity in Ireland is an essential foundation for the establishment of a real understanding and friendship between the two peoples and the two countries.

"The difficulties ahead of us are great, but our discussions have been conducted in a frank and friendly atmosphere. We ask all people of goodwill to assist us in removing these difficulties." Mr. De Valera was looking well and cheerful despite the heavy week entailed by the talks.—Reuter.

"SUMMERISH" WEATHER IN HONG KONG

High Humidity Persists

"Summerish" weather caused by unseasonable humidity and temperature prevailed in the Colony yesterday.

The feature of the report issued by the Royal Observatory was the dense humidity (94 per cent), which was only six per cent below saturation. This is the highest recorded in the Colony since December 16 and is within a few per cent of the highest ever registered in Hong Kong during the month of January.

At 10 a.m. yesterday the temperature was 67 degrees, while the barometer was 30.07 inches. Yesterday's maximum and minimum temperature was 73 and 62 degrees respectively, the reading being taken at 4 p.m.

The maximum temperature on Tuesday was 68 degrees, with a night minimum of 62.

The total rainfall since January 1 was .32 inch, against an average of .50.

An anticyclone of moderate intensity has developed over China and pressure is highest to the north-west of Shantung, whilst a shallow depression is moving north-eastward across southern Japan.

North-east winds, moderate to fresh, cloudy, generally with fog at first, probably drizzle or light rain later, is the local forecast for to-day.

HONG KONG, JANUARY 21, 1938.

PEACEFUL CO-OPERATION . . .

Solution of her economic problems, caused by an ever-growing population and the rapid development of her industrial and commercial interests, is the real object of Japan's policy in China, according to statements made by Japanese spokesmen.

Reconciliation of this object with the present Japanese activities in China, involving widespread destruction and wholesale slaughter of thousands of innocents is indeed difficult for the people of the rest of the world, as well as of China.

Granted that Japan has her economic problems. What country would not, that had built herself into a world power from a comparatively isolated nation in such a comparatively short span of years. But why ravage a country with which she wishes to be on friendly terms, from which she wishes to procure raw materials, to which she wishes to sell her finished products?

Japan could easily have chosen the course of peaceful and friendly co-operation with China and dealt with her on a basis of equality and reciprocity. The increased trade would have done much to avert the political and economic crisis that preceded the outbreak of hostilities this year.

Even as late as June she could have followed this course but she preferred the other way—to create "friendship" by fire and sword. It was a decision that has cost Japan dear and will cost her much more dearly yet.

Why was not Japan content to follow the example of other nations trading under favourable conditions with China? The only answer to that question is that the demands of the Japanese warlords for a blood sacrifice proved too strong for those who would counsel a policy of peaceful co-operation.

The Japanese are prone to talk scathingly of Chinese disunity. The present state of affairs shows clearly the wide breach existing between the war-lords and the more rational Japanese who now have plucked up sufficient courage to advocate following the path of peace.

Undoubtedly Japan urgently needs raw materials for her programme of industrial development and markets for her exports, but her claim that she must have new territory for her excess population is patently false. Just consider the small number of Japanese who have migrated to Formosa, Korea and Manchuria.

BRITISH FIRMS IN FAR EAST

Favourable London Comment

(BY AIR MAIL)

London, Jan. 7.
A feature of the markets in recent months has been the comparative firmness of the shares of British companies operating in Hong Kong and Shanghai.

Although the majority of these now stand well below the highest levels reached last year, the decline in value has been no greater than that of British industrial equities, and in some cases much less, writes S. W. Alexander in the "Evening Standard."

This unexpected strength in the face of the Sino-Japanese dispute is partly due to the belief that the companies in question will continue to make good profits, and partly because of the faith amongst investors in the Far East in Britain's power to protect her commercial interests.

It has been very noticeable that the shares of companies financed locally, and with their registered offices in either Hong Kong or Shanghai, have fallen much more heavily than the entirely British concerns, and it is said that ever since the outbreak of hostilities there has been a movement to sell the former type of security and reinvest the proceeds in the latter.

As a result, any shares that are liquidated in the London market are rapidly absorbed by purchasers in Hong Kong or Shanghai, and this absorption continually tends to prevent heavy depreciation.

LARGE AND FLOURISHING UNDERTAKINGS

While most British investors are familiar with such companies as the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, the Indo-China Steam Navigation Company and the Union Insurance Society of Canton, few realise what a number of large and flourishing undertakings—most of them with Chinese dollar capital—exist in the two great Chinese ports.

Many of them have boards composed partly of Englishmen and partly of Chinese, while some are entirely administered by the latter. They cover almost every type of business and over long periods have given a fair return to their shareholders. One of the most important, the Dairy Farm, Ice and Cold Storage Company, with a capital of 1,885,725 dol. in shares of 75 dol. each, has made annual distributions for the last four years at an average rate of 21 per cent.

Another, the Macao Electric Lighting Company, has paid an average of 12½ per cent. in the same period, while the Hong Kong Telephone Company has made distributions at the rate of 12 per cent. for some years.

SHANGHAI SECURITIES

Probably the most remunerative businesses in Hong Kong, however, are those connected with the port itself.

The Star Ferry Company, for example, with a capital of only 800,000 dol., has regularly made profits from its various undertakings of around 425,000 dol.; and has paid average dividends since 1932 of about 55 per cent on its 10 dol. shares.

Provided Hong Kong remains untouched by war, there seems every likelihood that the many companies operating there will continue to flourish, and should any further falls in share prices take place, investors might do well to take an interest in some of the larger concerns.

So far as Shanghai is concerned, however, the outlook is more doubtful, since the power of Britain to protect her interests in the international settlement from damage are obviously not as great as in the colony.

Accordingly, investors should regard all Shanghai securities as of a very speculative character until the outlook is clearer.

TRAINING IN AIR RAID PRECAUTIONS

FOR AMBULANCE BRIGADE MEMBERS

Brigade Overseas Headquarters
St. John's Gate,
Clerkenwell, London E.C. 1.
15th December, 1937.

A. Morris, Esq.,
Headquarters,
Tal Hang Road,
Hong Kong.

Dear Sir.—As you may know the Order of St. John has been asked by His Majesty's Home Office and has agreed to train the personnel of the St. John Ambulance Brigade in Air Raid Precautions in order that a body of men and women trained in this subject may be available to Central and Local Governments for supplementing official resources.

The first steps taken by the Brigade at Home to fulfil this obligation was to select a number of its personnel and to train them as instructors and these instructors are now training other members of the Brigade and also members of the general public some of whom are being registered in a special auxiliary reserve.

It is suggested that the Brigade in Hong Kong might wish to be trained in Air Raid Precautions so as to be ready to respond to a similar request from the Hong Kong Government. In the event of the matter being taken up by the Brigade in Hong Kong the first step would be to select and train members as instructors and I believe that one or two of your members have already taken advantage of the Home Office Course held at Faldfield.

I enclose herewith a copy of the regulations governing Air Raid Precautions training in the Brigade at Home (B.O.885) for your guidance in drawing up regulations for the use of the Brigade in Hong Kong. I would draw attention to the fact that Instructor's certificates are of two kinds—Grade 1 and Grade 2. The Grade 1 Instructor's certificate is recognised by His Majesty's Home Office as permitting the holder to instruct and examine the general public and is issued by Brigade Headquarters in London only. The Grade 2 Instructor's certificate entitles the holders to instruct (but not examine) members of the Brigade and is issued by the Officer in charge of the District.

In the case of Hong Kong it is suggested (1) that the same prin-

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS

Bishop Ronald Hall of Hong Kong flew to Manila yesterday by the Philippine Clipper to take part in the consecration of the Rev. Wilner as assistant Bishop of the Philippine Islands. It is understood that Bishop Hall will be returning by the next Clipper.

Another prominent passenger on the outgoing Clipper yesterday was Mr. David, Wal-kwok An, manager of the Bank of Canton. Mr. Au has urgent business to attend to in Manila, but is expected back next week.

Mr. K. A. Bidmead, Assistant Superintendent of Police, also left yesterday for Manila by the Clipper. Mr. Bidmead is on short leave, and will return to the Colony in a fortnight's time.

Lieut.-Colonel G. Lammie, M.C., Officer Commanding the 1st Battalion, Seaforth Highlanders, and Mrs. Lammie, have given up their Peak residence and will be moving into the Hong Kong Hotel tomorrow.

Mr. F. G. Gellion, managing director of the Macao Electric Company Ltd., celebrates his birthday to-day. Mr. Gellion is very well-known here, and the hearty greetings of his many Hong Kong friends go out to him on this happy occasion.

Congratulations also to Mr. Maurice H. Arnold, of the Hong Kong Electric Company, and Mr. A. Spary, of the Public Works Department, who both celebrate their birthdays to-day.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Bone, accompanied by their two daughters, returned from Home leave on Wednesday by the s.s. Carthage. Mr. Bone is connected with the Talbot Dockyard.

HAN FU-CHU COURT-MARTIAL

Arrested On Chiang's Order

Hankow, Jan. 20.

The Generalissimo's headquarters to-day officially announced that on Chiang Kai-shek's orders, General Han Fu-chu was arrested on Jan. 11 and handed over to the Director-General for the Enforcement of Military Law for trial by a special high military court organised for the purpose.

The trial is now proceeding. Han Fu-chu is accused of having, firstly, disobeyed the orders of superior commanders and retreated on his own accord; secondly, forced the sale of opium on the people of Shantung; thirdly, by force extracted taxes and levies from the people; fourthly, seized public funds and fifthly deprived the people of Shantung of their firearms.—Reuter.

H.K. PING PONG ASSOCIATION

A meeting of the Hong Kong Ping Pong Association was held on Wednesday night when the following were elected to serve on the general committee:—

A set of forms and certificates used in the Brigade at Home is forwarded herewith. A supply of these will be forwarded to you if desired or they may be printed locally.

Yours faithfully,
A. N. CARUSAC,
Staff Officer.

General Morris A. Cohen, arrived from Canton yesterday by the s.s. Sai On, and is staying at the Hong Kong Hotel. General Cohen was once personal A.D.C. to Dr. Sun Yat-sen, and is now Adviser to General Wu Te-chen, Governor of Kwangtung.

Among the passengers who arrived in the Colony yesterday from Hankow by plane was Dr. Richard Kempe, German Vice-Consul at Canton. Dr. Kempe accompanied a party of German businessmen to Central China a few days ago. He leaves this morning by boat for Canton.

Mr. Rudolf Friml, the distinguished composer of "Rose Marie" and other well-known operettas, writes from Manila saying that he expects to come to Hong Kong very shortly. Mr. Friml has previously spent long periods in this Colony and has a large circle of friends here. He passed through on the Empress of Japan last week on his way to the Philippines and spent the entire afternoon touring the New Territories.

The forthcoming wedding is announced of Mr. Cheong Hynn Shen, of the Central Trust Company of China, and Miss Luk Shin-fun.

A very popular member of Shanghai's younger set, Miss Margaret Parsons, familiarly known as "Bingo," who is at present in the Colony, celebrates her coming-of-age to-day. Miss Parsons came here last year when Shanghai residents were advised to evacuate, and has since made a great number of friends here, who will wish to extend to her their hearty greetings to-day. Miss Parsons is the house guest of Chev. and Mrs. J. M. Alves, of "Valverde," No. 302 Prince Edward Road, Kowloon.

CLOSE GAME AT SOOKUNPOO

Seaforths And H.M.S. Adventure

The Rugby football match between the Seaforths and Small Units arranged for yesterday afternoon was postponed but H.M.S. Adventure very obligingly fielded a team against the Highlanders and an exceedingly close game resulted, the final whistle sounding with the score sheet blank.

Play for the greater part was confined to midfield and there was little to choose between the sides though the handling of the Seaforths was perhaps better. The teams were:—

Seaforths: Walmsley, Ballantyne, Hardman, Carruthers, Peachy, Rainey, Lt. R. D. MacLagen, Bousstead, Knowles, MacLaughlin, Milne, Lt. MacLagen, Peck, Walker, and Richardson.

ADVENTURE:—Roanthee, Northcote, Prichard, Murray, Flarvey, Munford, Newton, Dunbarton, Jones, Crubbe, Barson, Evans, Lewis, Blunt, Walter.

Basket Ball Win For Lady Undergrads

The University Ladies basket ball team engaged the Ching Mo Club in a friendly basket ball match at the University (Eu Tong Sen Gymnasium) yesterday and won by 38 points to 27.

It was very enjoyable and more closely contested than the score would indicate.

Paul Kong's Comeback

Preparing For Local Championships

Paul Kong, the Chinese Recreation Club player, and member of the Davis Cup team (China), 1924 and 1928, is staging a comeback in local tennis and is already in serious practice for the forthcoming Colony tennis championships run by the Hong Kong Cricket Club.

Kong is at present playing a great deal of tennis at the C.R.C. and partnered by Tsui Yan-pul, he is expected to reach the Club's doubles championship. He is also making good progress in the singles.

Paul Kong.

Another pair who are expected to reach the finals in this tournament are Willie Hung and Tsui Wai-pul, Colony hardcourt doubles champions and the meeting between this pair and Kong and 'Young' Tsui should be most exciting.

In the Colony open doubles championship, Kong will be partnered by Lee Wai-tung, idol of China's millions of football enthusiasts who has also come to the forefront in the tennis world.

H.M.S. ADVENTURE'S SOCCER WIN

Close Game At The Valley

Despite the fine work of Trauter, at goal and Knappman and Gilbert at full-back, H.M.S. Dorsetshire were beaten by two goals to nil in the Fleet Football League at Happy Valley yesterday by H.M.S. Adventure. The standard of football was quite high though there were some weak spots in the forward line of the Dorsetshire.

The match attracted a large crowd of spectators and play in the first twenty minutes was very fast, the ball being carried rapidly from one end to the other while Birch and Compton on the right wing were a constant source of worry to the Dorsetshire defenders.

After about half-an-hour's play Compton tested Trauter with a very hard drive but the goalie was not found wanting and cleared in fine style. The Adventure, however, was not to be denied and keeping up a pressure, they were rewarded just before the interval when Trauter, in attempting a clearance, fell to the ground and allowed Compton to tap the ball into the goal.

AN EVEN HALF

When play was resumed the Adventure took up the attack again but their efforts were nullified by the extremely keen defence. Then for about ten minutes the Dorsetshire monopolised play and they came very near to scoring but weakness on the part of their forwards when in front of the goal lost them many opportunities.

Once again the Adventure returned to the attack and after forcing three corners they scored their second goal through Merri-man who crowned a fine solo run with a drive which gave the goalie no chance.

The teams were:—
ADVENTURE:—Church, Reed, Street, Drew, Bond, Rafferty, Birch, Compton, Green, Cook and Merri-man.

DORSETSHIRE:—Trauter; Knappman, Gilbert, Cross, Strother Down; Taylor, Morrill, Sar-tain, Kirby and Woods.

GLENN LEE AGAIN

Los Angeles: Glenn Lee, a fast young welterweight now fighting in the middleweight class, scored a technical knockout against Angelo Lugliasi in the sixth round of a 10-round bout.

Lee, who hails from Lincoln, Nebr., weighed 155, and Lugliasi, who comes from Duluth, Ill., weighed 160.

Lugliasi was floored three times.

COL. TEVERSHAM BATS WELL AGAINST CLUB

Robbie Lee In Deadly Form With The Ball

BY L.B.W.

I have already dealt exhaustively with the Indians-Recrelo match in my notes on Wednesday and to-day I shall review the other three First Division games that were played on Saturday.

Taking the match at Sookunpoo, between the Club and the Army, I was somewhat surprised that the Club skipper did not declare earlier than about 4.15 p.m. Scoring was not too slow, especially when Owen Hughes and Lt. R. H. S. Clark started to knock them about a bit, though I will admit the other Club bats were not very impressive after Alec Pearce was caught in attempting to knock the ball over the Tung Wah Hospital building.

L/Cpl. Cheney bowled very steadily for the Army, his 5 for 49 representing a very useful afternoon's work. Barron was very erratic I think he is too prone to sacrifice length for pace and this is fatal.

COL. TEVERSHAM'S KNOCK

The Army bats were not too comfortable against the well-varied attack of the Club and they were soon fighting with their backs to the wall. Col. Teversham, however, came to the rescue with as fine a knock as I have seen for many a long day and his 45 not out was actually worth double that score. He was seeing the ball very well and while he paid due respect to the better ones, anything short of a length was dealt with in no uncertain manner. The result—a draw—was not altogether unexpected but if too much time had not been wasted over tea, and a group photograph, I think the Club might have just forced a win.

ROBBIE LEE'S BOWLING

Kowloon Cricket Club scored an easy win over the Navy, thanks to a fine piece of bowling by Robbie Lee, the interporter, who captured seven wickets for only 24 runs. I did not see the match but am told on very reliable Corps (Sookunpoo), 4 p.m. Third Division (Kowloon), Portuguese S. A. v. Air Force (King's Park), 2.30 p.m.; 20th Bty. R. A. v. Signals (Kowloon), 4 p.m.

Golf—Junior Championship, First round (R. H. K. G. C. Fanning), Bogey Pool, Old Course (Fanning), Captain's Cup (Kowloon Club).

Hunting—Fanning Meet (Hunting Arms), 2.45 p.m.

Shooting—Spoon and Practice Shoots (Kowloon City ranges), 8.30 a.m.

How Law Governs One's Daily Life

OFF TO WORK

In due course he and Mary are dressed and at breakfast, and all too soon he has to be off to work taking with him the newspaper of his choice. He has to go to the Hong Kong side and on such a wet morning that involves a bus or a ricksha to the Ferry and a bus or a tram on the other side before he reaches his office.

Meanwhile Mary has gone out to do her morning shopping. She lunches at home while John goes to a convenient restaurant. John remembers that Mary is going to a friend's house that evening to play bridge so when he leaves his office he goes to listen to a lecture that he has seen advertised.

With not one of the sentiments that he hears expressed does he agree. The lecture is in his opinion sheerly seditious and anti-social at times almost blasphemous, yet the police officers who are present do not interfere and meeting is orderly. John and Mary meet again at dinner, after which they go to the nearest hotel to dance until midnight.

ESSENTIAL SERVICES

A very ordinary story you will say, but what has it to do with law and citizenship? I will try to tell you. John's first sentiment act was to turn on his bath water, and, assuming he has a gas geyser, the gas, in order that he might have a hot bath. Why has he got water and gas at his command? Why has everyone situated as he is got such essential services available?

That brings me to a consideration of the first branch of municipal law that I want to talk about this evening, the law regulating what are conveniently termed public utility companies. It is a commonplace of life in a modern civilised community that there should be made available to citizens certain essential services, such as water, electric light and power, and gas, and with those one usually associates transportation.

GOVERNMENT AND BUSINESS
In less highly developed communities these are frequently in their inception state undertakings, but, as Government is proverbially a bad business man, such undertakings are as soon as possible transferred to municipalities or corporations financially and technically able to conduct them successfully.

One of the largest of essential services, the collection and delivery of letters and postal packets is universally a state undertaking and a state monopoly.

It may perhaps surprise some of you to hear how jealously that exclusive privilege is safeguarded, and to learn that here in Hong Kong, though the immemorial chit book system is legalised, "being described in legal terminology as "letters concerning the affairs of the sender or receiver thereof sent by a messenger employed for that purpose" any one of you will commit an offence if on your next visit to Shanghai or Singapore you carry more than three letters of introduction, from a friend in Hong Kong.

WHY LAW INTERVENES

In Hong Kong to-day two other such services, the Kowloon Canton Railway and the supply of water, are controlled by Government departments, but our other essential services are managed by private undertakers, in each case according to law.

Why is it necessary for law to intervene in such matters as these, which might be left to the operation of the ordinary principles of supply and demand?

The law steps in for the protection of both the undertakers and their customers. Manifestly no responsible body of men is likely to put up, or to induce others to put up, the considerable amount of capital necessary for the erection of expensive buildings, the installation of costly machinery and the construction and maintenance of a net work of wires or pipes or tramway lines unless they are protected against un-economic competition, and so it has become customary to grant to such public utility undertakings a virtual monopoly, though that unpopular word is not used, but in place of it we talk of a franchise or an exclusive licence.

THE BEST TERMS

But if you give one company the sole and exclusive right to generate electricity or to run a tramway, a ferry, or a bus service it is only common prudence to protect the customer also. In default of such protection there would be nothing to prevent an unscrupulous company from charging exorbitant rates or fares, with the comfortable knowledge that as they had no competitors it would be "take it or leave it" for the man in the street.

Government, therefore, in the interests both of responsible undertakers and of the mass of citizens imposes the best terms it can get. In return for an exclusive licence for a term of years it insists on an adequate service and further provides that no charge may be levied in excess of a maximum fixed by law.

SAFETY LEGISLATION

It also takes upon itself the duty of legislating for the safety of the public in connection with any such public utility service.

It is because of that assumption of duty by the Government by the medium of the law, that John cannot himself fix another light close to his shaving glass in his bathroom, for Regulation 33 of the Regulations Scheduled to the Electricity Supply Ordinance, 1911 provides "Every person who makes any addition to any electrical installation connected to the company's mains without obtaining the written consent of the company thereto shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars for every such addition."

THANKS TO LAW

So far as public utility services are concerned, John has much more for which to thank the law on this typical day of his life. When he travels by bus, by ferry or by tram it is because of the kindly intervention of the law on his behalf that he knows that on a certain route at a stated time there will be a clean conveyance, which by a route which he knows will take him to a certain point for a known charge.

Time tables, routes, and fares are all prescribed by law, and in return for their agreement to be bound by such restrictions on their freedom of choice the undertaking company is given exclusive rights over a certain area. It is all done in the interests of the ordinary citizen.

EFFECTIVE LEGISLATION

Without effective legislation for the regulation and control of such vital matters there might be chaos, and there certainly would be confusion and waste of time. Buses would run only at peak hours to skim the cream off the traffic, fares might vary according to the traffic forthcoming and there would be nothing to prevent incessant stopping and loitering for fares and hopeless overcrowding.

My own memory goes back vividly to early days in London before buses were controlled. I well remember what a perilous business a bus ride might be, stopping anywhere for any stray passenger, then whipping up the horses in order to reach another lot of passengers before a rival company's bus could pick them up; passengers accepted so long as one more could be crammed into the vehicle and not even straps for standing passengers to hold on by.

These bad old days have gone forever thanks to the provisions of law, which in such a case as this is the expression of the corporate wish of the citizens.

SUBSIDIARY FORMS OF

TRANSPORT

Even when we come to subsidiary forms of transport, public motor cars, taxicabs, rickshas or chairs, the friendly hand of the statute law is again extended in our aid.

By registration, licensing and inspection Government takes care that the vehicle and the man in charge shall be identifiable in case of need and the conveyance will be clean and fit for the purpose for which it is designed.

The obligation to comply with the traffic rules and regulations ensures that the streets will be reasonably safe even for the poor and despoiled pedestrian. The streets too will be reasonably clean, at least in Kowloon, and the side walks will not be impeded by goods from adjoining shops again by operation of law.

The necessity for shaving, bathing and even the most modest use of cosmetics and other so-called aids to beauty introduces us to another great branch of the law. When John buys a shaving brush he knows that it is safe to use and not a potential source of anthrax infection; when he buys his favourite shaving soap or Mary purchases powder, cream or lipstick, each of them assume, without stopping to think of the justification for that assumption, that they are getting what they contracted to buy.

BY LAW'S HELP

Why is that? Again it is by the help of the law. Legislation for the registration of trade marks makes it dangerous, to put it mildly, for an unscrupulous manufacturer to put on the market an inferior article in a container which is a colourable imitation of a well known and established brand, so when John asks for X's shaving soap and Mary for a box of Y's powder and one of Z's lipsticks of her favourite shade each gets what they want.

To us, in these enlightened days, the principle of the registration of trade marks is such a commonplace that it comes as a shock to us to realise how very modern trade marks legislation is.

The unsatisfactory state of the law in regard to the false marking of goods led to an urgent demand from the traders in Great Britain for more efficient and effective protection and in 1862 a Select Committee of the House of Commons was appointed to report on the advisability of establishing a register of trade marks and the creation of rights in registered marks.

TRADE MARKS

Registration of cutlers' marks had been in force in Hallamshire, the area immediately surrounding Sheffield, since the time of Elizabeth, and several European countries also had facilities for registering trade marks, so it is the more amazing that the Select Committee reported against any system of registration.

It is not surprising to find that the opposition was led by Mr. Hindmarch Q. C. the leading patent and trade mark lawyer of the day, who doubtless feared that his remunerative practice would suffer if there were introduced a simple system for registering marks and punishing their infringement.

It was not until thirteen years later, by the Trade Marks Registration Act, 1875, that the present Register of Trade Marks was established in England. Hong Kong was in this matter more progressive than the mother country, for our register of trade marks was established by Ordinance No. 16 of 1873.

JAPAN OVER ASIA

Fascinating And Timely Book

Japan Over Asia, by William Henry Chamberlin (Boston: Little, Brown, $3.50), is as fascinating and timely a book as has been written about any of the major theatres of world diplomacy in a long time. It, as Chamberlin's opening sentence indicates, "a spectre is haunting East Asia: the spectre of Japan," that spectre is taking on a grim actuality. No book has made clearer the tragic pity of the transformation of this peaceful island Empire from the days of the Shogunate into the modern scourge of Asia. The forces, both material and intellectual, that drive Japan on military conquest are described with all the insight and clarity that made Mr. Chamberlin's books on Russia so outstanding.

There is this difference: Japanese militarism, semi-fascist though it may be, does not seem to fill its author with the distaste, often amounting to hostility, that marked his accounts of Russian communism. He writes with detachment and with a certain sympathy for the Japanese—a sympathy which few people who have lived among them fail to show.

JAPANESE TRIALS

The Chinese, briefly treated in relation to Japanese designs, leave him apparently baffled by the sheer mass of their problems. Not that he is unfair. He is scrupulously detached. But he sets himself much more sympathetically to interpret the soul as well as the trials of modern Japan.

Natural beauty has its charm, and ritual, too, in this esthetic people who carry the teaching of the arrangement of flowers even into the training of factory girls. Japan to-day, far more ideal than western fascism, answers the hunger of undisciplined and therefore unhappy nations whose family life is as shaken as the social structure by the "dangerous thoughts" of individualism. The Kodō (Imperial) way of life is struggling in Japan against the modernizing influences of capitalist industrialism. And the officer class of the army, recruited from the frugal and puritanical peasantry, is trying to put the limits of a Platonic "Commonwealth" upon a mere tradesman's view.

"SPLIT PERSONALITY" In brilliant and entertaining chapters, the "split national personality" of the Japanese is shown leading them on to the conquest of Asia, and perhaps to eventual clash with the West.

As for America's stake in the outcome in China, Mr. Chamberlin feels that it is too small to warrant any but quixotic motives for intervention. American trade with Japan has been growing, he shows, till it now totals about two or three times that with China. He discounts China's future as a market, though at the same time he points out that if China ever does become a great market she will also become a much more formidable competitor along the lines that make Japan's "cheap labour" so exasperating to western industrialists.

TANGLED SKIN

It may be questioned whether Mr. Chamberlin or any other foreign correspondent can unravel the tangled skin of the Japanese economic position. But he makes the most valiant and intelligible effort so far available. The drift toward a war-time economy and the resultant crisis in Japan's present economic position is clearly sketched. The vicious circle, clearly evident in Germany and Italy also, of having to stifle domestic distress with nationalistic exaltation, is shown in both the Manchurian and the present Chinese crisis. What ultimate failure to relieve the position of industrial labouring classes and particularly the peasants may mean he does not venture to predict—though he thinks the short-run prospects all against revolution. It is a matter that may be vital to the peace of the United States. For foreign adventures are most tempting to relieve political strain if they do not threaten revolution—W.Y.E. in the "Christian Science Monitor."

LIFE SENTENCE ON "MAGNETIC" PARSON

Sentence of life imprisonment was passed at Pittsfield, Illinois, on the "magnetic parson," the Rev. Ellsworth Newton, a frail Baptist minister, found guilty of the murder of Mrs. Maybelle Kelly, aged 45, during a "whoopie ride" in a car.

Newton, aged 51, was described by police as "a god to women," and was said to have had affairs with many of his parishioners.

He helped Mrs. Kelly, a wealthy woman, to flee from her "unhappy" home.

After a wild ride Newton battered her to death after she decided she would not elope with him.

In a confession he said he had hit Mrs. Kelly on the head with a hammer and thrown her body into the Mississippi.

In court, however, he accused his foster-daughter of having engineered the crime.

Prosecuting counsel told the jury: "It is your duty to send this man to the electric chair. I demand it before God."

But the jury recommended life imprisonment.

Many frenzied women tried to enter the court, screaming that Newton was innocent.

He has received dozens of lavish presents from women.

COALMINING IN CHINA

In its last financial year the Chinese Engineering Mining Company was able to show satisfactory results. A marked revival of trade in the autumn of 1936 enabled the company to benefit from increased sales at higher prices, while competition of Chinese-owned mines diminished and costs were reduced.

During the "current year" the effect upon trade caused by military activities has been seen in a drop in sales of coal for 23 weeks from 1,702,000 metric tons to 1,567,000 tons; the reduction, due largely to the company's inability to ship coal to Shanghai and other Yangtze ports, would have been greater but for the partial compensation secured by increased sales elsewhere.

Mr. W. F. Turner (the chairman of the company) spoke with necessary caution observing that the war was causing profound changes in the political structure of North China, the end of which could not be seen. He was, however, able to state that so far the company had suffered no physical loss during the fighting and that the general effect on the business had been less severe than might have been expected in view of the widespread area over which the business extended.

£200,000 For Wire Broadcasting Experiment

Sir Walter Womersley, Assistant Postmaster-General, announced in the House of Commons recently that it was proposed to introduce a public experimental wire broadcasting service in Southampton this year.

It would be undertaken, he said, as part of the practical experimental work on wire distribution of broadcast programmes with which the Post Office was charged in accordance with recommendation of the Committee on Broadcasting, 1935.

In addition to the main public service distributed by means of a special wire network, a limited experiment would be made in the distribution of broadcast programmes over the telephone wires. Subscribers would have a choice of several programmes, and he was in consultation with the B.B.C. concerning the arrangements for their selection.

The charge for the service would be 1s. 6d. a week, plus a small initial payment.

It was hoped to start work in the laying down of equipment in the next few months and to open the service in part of Southampton in the late summer or autumn. The total capital cost was estimated at about £200,000.

Increase of £190,000 compared with the same period last year.

Part of the increase is accounted for by the five per cent. increase in the passenger and freight fares.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

INCREASE IN REVENUE OF Y200,000,000

Higher Taxation To Finance China War

Tokyo, Jan. 19. An increase in revenue of Y200,000,000 to finance the China war, through higher taxation, both direct and indirect categories, are being planned by the Japanese Ministry of Finance, where efforts are being speeded to draft the necessary measures for presentation to the Diet, soon after its resumption on January 22.

Approximately Y100,000,000 will be raised in addition by extending the "North China Incident" taxes. The Y200,000,000 increase has been provided for mainly by an increase in the individual income and national taxes, a revival of the transit taxes, impositions on new built homes and an extension of the new special articles tax.

Appropriations for the "China Incident" will be asked from the Diet in the form of extraordinary military accounts. The budget is likely to exceed Y400,000,000.

Negotiations are still progressing between the Finance, War and Navy Ministers. The latter, in view of China's announced determination not to sue for peace is alleged to have decided to ask for sufficient appropriations to avoid the necessity of calling another extraordinary session of the Diet in the near future.

The higher taxes will remain in force for a period of one year after the termination of the Sino-Japanese hostilities.

TAX PROGRAMME OUTLINED

An outline of the tax programme given in the Chugai Shogyo, the leading Tokyo financial paper is as follows: firstly, income taxes will be increased by a minimum of 20 per cent. to realise between Y110,000,000 and Y120,000,000 additional revenue. Secondly, there will be an amplification of the provisional tax on profit on business and industries directly connected with the hostilities. Thirdly, there will be an extension of the "North China Incident" special articles tax on ten selected articles. At the present rate this tax is expected to realise Y30,000,000. Fourthly, there will be an extension of the term "North China Incident Tax," insofar as it does not affect income taxes, and also of the "North China Incident Special Articles Tax," which is expected to realise Y50,000,000. Fifthly, there will be an increase in the salt, sugar, and gasoline taxes realising Y60,000,000. Sixthly, a revival of the transit tax (a tax on the purchase of railway tickets) will realise Y30,000,000.

Otherwise a revival of old taxes and the creation of new taxes in principle will be confined to a minimum.

Seventhly, the newspaper states, land capital, interest and business profit taxes are unlikely to be increased, but a decision has not yet been reached regarding a tax on capital of "juridical persons." Eighthly, the present Y1200 exemption for the assessment of first class income tax will probably be reduced to Y1,000.

This eighth measure is likely to be postponed as enforcement would probably realise no more than Y3,000,000 at the cost of widespread social affects.

As soon as the drafting of the tax programme has been completed by the Ministry of Finance the project will be transferred for further study to a Taxation System Inquiry Commission, and only after the approval of this commission will it be presented to the Diet.—Reuter.

FRENCH ECONOMIC POLICY

Paris, Jan. 19. The prediction made by political circles in Paris and elsewhere that the Chautemps Cabinet will show a marked tendency to turn away from Moscow, in order to seek closer association with London and Washington, has found early confirmation in certain pronouncements made by M. Georges Bonnet, whose position in the new Cabinet is Minister for co-ordinating the economic and financial policies of the French Government.

Speaking on Wednesday at a banquet arranged by one of the many business clubs in Paris, M. Bonnet said that France was now faced with a great necessity of reinforcing the political and economic basis of her partnership with the two big democracies, Great Britain and the United States of America.

AIR RECONNAISSANCE FOR THE NAVY

A large number of light seaplanes with specially sprung floats are being built for the Fleet Air Arm. This order is of special interest as revealing the Navy's desire for high seaworthiness rather than high performance in those aircraft which its cruisers will use for reconnaissance work. The new float seaplane, a product of the Fairey Aviation Company, has a top speed of only 124 miles an hour, but it has lighted on 7ft. waves and should be fit for use in all but the worst weather. The quality of this little seaplane is essentially its strength for the withstanding of shocks either on board ship when the guns are firing or on the water when seas are heavy. In the latter respect its sprung floats and highly stressed undercarriage have given remarkable results. Having secured a reconnaissance machine fit for service in nearly all weather, the Navy is content to accept moderate performance in exchange for convenience in stowage aboard ship and economy in engine power. The engine fitted is the Napier Rapier (395 h.p.) H-shaped type. When the biplane wings are folded for stowing the width of the aeroplane is only 14ft.

CAPTAIN LAUNCHING

The Fairey works at Hamble, near Southampton, are fully occupied in building the Seafax. Many aircraft of this type will ultimately be carried in the cruisers. They will be sent off on their reconnaissance flights, which may last for periods of four hours each, by means of catapult-launching. On returning they will alight near their ships and be hoisted aboard. The Seafax has been designed specifically for the work it is intended to do and for the particular conditions in which that work may have to be done. There is, for instance, a system of cables and wires above and below the upper wing to allow of easy hoisting; the pilot's cockpit is wholly uncovered to allow him freedom of movement when the craft is being slung; and there are rudders on the floats which enable the seaplane to be turned on the water within its own length in a 25 miles-an-hour wind.

It carries a load equal to that of a torpedo aeroplane in which twice the power is used, and in addition to a Lewis gun for its own defence it has a whole range of equipment appropriate to a marine reconnaissance craft.

STAMPED NOTE WITH FALSE CHOP

Chinese Sent To Gaol

SON WHOM FATHER SACKED AS "USELESS"

Found guilty on charges of forgery of a valuable security and uttering a forged document, So Huen, alias So Suen, alias P. C. So, who stood trial before the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, at the Sessions yesterday, was sentenced to two years' hard labour.

Accused signed a promissory note, which was for $1,135, in his own name, but stamped it with a false chop, alleged to be that of the Yee Hop firm, which was owned by his father, So Chun, declared Mr. E. H. Williams, Assistant Attorney General, who prosecuted.

"Accused had been managing the business for a number of years on behalf of his father, until November 1936, when he was relieved of his duties, as he was considered useless."

EXECUTING MATSHEDS

"The firm had been doing business with the Royal Naval Recreation Club, erecting matsheds and stands. The accounts were sent to the Club yearly, and in July, 1937, the amount due was about $1,800," said Counsel who went on to say that the Crown's Case was that accused knew of this, and made out the promissory note with the object of securing part of that money.

"The opportunity for the alleged fraud arose sometime in April last year," continued Counsel, "when the father returned to the country. In connection with the Ching Ming Festival, as was his invariable habit."

"Dated January 10, 1937 the note purported to be an acknowledgment by accused that he had borrowed the money from a woman by the name of Tam Shek-shi, interest and principal to be paid at the end of six months."

IN LAWYER'S OFFICE

"On January 27, last year, accused together with Tam and one Lam Cheung-shi, called 'at the office of Mr. Leo D'Almeida, Esq., and there interpreted an interpreter by the name of Mok Chifung."

"Lam did most of the talking at the interview and he was alleged to have stated that accused was the manager of the Yee Hop firm, which was not true as he had then left the business."

"The firm was alleged to have owed Tam $1,400 on two notes and the interpreter was asked to take proceedings to have part of the money due by the Royal Naval Recreation Club to the Yee Hop firm transferred to the woman.

"Later, on the instructions of Tam, the interpreter proceeded to issue a writ against accused and the Yee Hop firm. The writ was on April 9, and accused must have known about it as he went to the firm on that day, even though he had nothing more to do with the business. He waited there for about two hours and the writ was served on him."

"The case was heard on April 16, when accused consented to judgment representing he was the managing partner of the firm. The money not being paid by April 24, the interpreter wrote a letter to the Yee Hop firm, which was received by the father, who, however, paid no attention to it."

"THEY TAUGHT ME"

"In response to a telephone message, the father later called on the interpreter who showed him the promissory note. He found that the chop on it was false, and as a result he refused to pay the money."

"Sometime in June, the interpreter, on instructions, took out a garnishee order to have the money owed by the Royal Naval Recreation Club to the Yee Hop firm paid into Court. The order was made absolute, and accordingly the Club paid the money. The father only knew of this when he went to the Club and asked for payment."

Mr. Williams concluded by saying that as a result the present proceedings were instituted and accused was arrested on October 21. When formally charged, accused asked that the interpreter and Lam be arrested, saying that they had taught him to do such a thing.

Evidence corroborating the Crown's opening was then given, after which His Lordship addressed the jury who found accused guilty on both charges, as a result of which accused was sentenced to two years' hard labour for forgery and 12 months' for uttering the forged document, the sentences to run concurrently.

KIDNAPPING SUSPECTED

Leung Sai-to, aged 9, an inmate of the School of the Deaf and Dumb, Kowloon City, is suspected to have been kidnapped. According to a report made to the police by the authorities of the School at 8 p.m. last night, the boy had been missing since 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The boy is a deaf-mute. He is described as short and stout, with short hair. He was wearing the whitish-grey uniform of the School when he was last seen.

SMALL-POX NOT NOTIFIED

Leung Yee-tai, the woman who was charged before Mr. R. A. D. Forrest at the Central Magistracy on Wednesday with failing to notify the authorities of a case of small-pox, was cautioned when she was brought before His Worship on remand yesterday.

It was stated that the woman was a recent arrival from Wuchow and was waiting for funds before joining her husband in Singapore. She had since been vaccinated.

DINNER DANCE

The annual dinner dance of the Hong Kong Philharmonic Society will take place on Saturday, January 29, in the Roof Garden of the Hong Kong Hotel. Dancing will be till 3 a.m. by special extension. As only limited reservations are accepted, all who intend to be present are advised to book their tables early.

SUCCESSOR TO PEERAGE

The succession to Lord Baldwin's peerage is now assured. Lord Baldwin's elder son, Lord Cordvale, is a bachelor. Mr. Windham Baldwin, however, his younger son, was married eighteen months ago, and a son was born to his wife recently.

Mr. Windham Baldwin, who is known to his friends as "Blogs," does not share his elder brother's interest in politics. He manages his father's estate at Astley, and works in Baldwin's Ltd.

Recently he was appointed to a directorship of the Great Western Railway, a usual Baldwin prerogative.

Short-sighted and thick-spectacled, Mr. Baldwin is a young man of modest demeanour, and a subtle sense of humour. Appreciative of his father's financial sacrifices in the war he always refused an allowance from him. Now, with five directorships to his name, he is a man of some means.

BARN DANCE AT RECREIO

The Ladies' Section of the Club de Recreio has planned a Barn Dance to be held in the clubhouse, King's Park, on Sunday, January 30, commencing at 8 p.m.

Reserving the usual procedure, the lady members of the Club will on this occasion invite their gentlemen friends.

The function promises to be very enjoyable and interesting from every point of view, as those attending are required to wear old clothes—the more tattered and torn the better—overalls or other informal attire.

TALK ON CHEMISTRY OF PHOTOGRAPHY

Mr. S. Simpson, chemist of the Talkoo Dockyard, gave a very interesting and instructive talk on the Chemistry of Photography at the Soldiers' and Sailors' Home last night. One of a series of lectures planned by the Camera Club of the Home, the talk was accompanied by practical demonstration and experiments.

Mr. Simpson first demonstrated the action of light by means of a pyramid and a projection lantern, throwing a spectroscopic on the screen. The action of silver nitrate and silver bromide, two chemicals which comprise all sensitive material used in photography, was also demonstrated.

The composition of developers was explained in detail by the lecturer, who then made various recommendations to the enthusiasts present.

Many questions were asked in the course of the lecture, which was followed with great interest.

At the conclusion of the talk, Mr. W. C. Clark expressed the thanks of the gathering to Mr. Simpson.

WUHU RECAPTURED?

Hankow, Jan. 20.

Although official quarters here claim that Chinese troops are at present encircling Wuhu, they regard as premature Chinese reports that the city has actually been recaptured.
